Dear Mr. Wriedt:

Enclosed please find the original copy of the report of analysis of the water sample submitted here October 9. It (#75-967) is fairly high in total salt, but low in sodium. The approximate quality of this water for irrigation purposes is plotted on the outside back cover of extension circular 654 enclosed herewith for your use. Please keep these 2 items in a safe place.

Although the water is moderately high in total salinity, the major problem in this endeavor may be that the Luton soils are slowly permeable to very slowly permeable. This soil situation means that you will have to irrigate at a relatively slow rate but also irrigate in sufficient quantity each time to completely fill the root zone to whatever depth the soil has been dried out. Under these circumstances you should not have as rapid a build-up of salts in the surface soil as with frequent light irrigation. If you pursue a policy of frequent, small irrigations, you may build up a salt problem in the surface soil as early as 10 or 12 years after starting to irrigate. If such a circumstance does develop, as evidenced by whitish crusts on the soil surface or poor performance of crops, please get in touch with us for instructions on management for leaching procedures to try to alleviate the problem. The Luton soils, as you know, are difficult to drain and would present a real difficult situation for reclamation.

A copy of this letter, and the WI-1 form and the water quality report are being sent to the State Conservation Commission.

Sincerely yours,

L. O. Fink

I had a note on my desk that Permit No. 2431-3 was to be transferred and that I had mailed notice to LaVoy Wriedt in January, 1982.

The microfische did not have a copy of the notice in it, could have been tossed by accident upon purging files for microfilming.

I phoned Mr. Wriedt to ask if he had received the first notice and if the permit was still to be transferred.

Mr. Wriedt indicated the permit was still to be transferred, he had received the first notice, but had been very busy and neglected to complete the transfer form and mail it in.

I indicated to him I could mail him another form, he said he had the first transfer form in his desk and would find it and
